Horse and Speedy Notes

Two D. W. Caton horses, Belvidere (2:15) and McQuinn (2:17), should make the mile in 2:10. The latter horse also makes McQuinn (2:17), Belvidere (2:15) and McQuinn (2:17). There is a small sized trotter up for sale at Beaverville, and many horses down with it. The trotter was the fastest horse in the country the last week has proved a very true horse for the horses in training. A movement of distant and quietness were to be the primary betting about the horse.

Chatty Direct, the $100,000 J. J. who has been critically sick at Beaverville, is better. He is now in the hospital and is in a moderate recovery was still around last week.

D. W. Catton, owner, Belvidere and McGillivray (271-8) conducted sales in Vermont race-picking. He also meets Prince Louis, Richard, and Mary B. at Sherbrooke, Quebec, in the 2:20 flat, and McGillivray has been seen there "on some meeting in the 2:20 flat." At Sandbury and White River Junction, N.H., Catton was seen with J.V. dates which need not be kept; owing to the frost now against South.

In a small sized strainer they found out at Readville, where horses are down with it. The wet weather of the past week has proved a very trying one for the horses, and the amount of diluted alcohol and quinine seems to have the desired effecting about the results.

Chatty Direct, the $40,000 RH, who has been critically sick at Readville, is better today, but still weak. The temperature yesterday was still around 101°.

HUNT GOES FROM A RANCH TO STAR BALL PLAYER IN 3 YEARS

ATHLETICS FOR ME, SAYS JIN

It's a good even bet," said Jim McEwen, manager of the Cleveland team. "I asked who he would pick to win the world's series if the Chicago Cubs and the Athletics for the big prize. If the Athletics can continue to play the kind of ball they are now playing, the chances look good for beating the Sox," said the veteran. "It all depends on their pitchers keeping up strong." The Athletics are stirring local interest. "I will never miss a game," said a Cubs who are the favorites. But proponent Connie Mack's pitchers show the form the Athletics look best to meet.

War Breeds a Race of Cowards

By T. E. POWERS

Great Value to Advertisers—Value Infinitely Greater to the Nation

As one friend talking to another about certain kinds of goods can influence a friend more than a stranger, so a country newspaper standing on a footing of friendship with its readers can talk to them about goods for sale or any other topic and impress them more strongly than the big metropolitan newspaper, which is really a stranger, an abstraction to its readers, can impress the metropolitan reader.

As conditions are to-day, the local editor, the man who is leading thousands of good fights all over the country, is poorly recognized, or not recognized at all. With few exceptions, it is impossible for man of great ability, public spirit and integrity to make by hard work in a year of intelligent journalism a quarter as much as can be made by any rascal willing to sell himself to a corporation. It is a great harm to the country that the ambitious newspaper man should be moving always toward the big cities in order to make a decent living. Every town where there is a Congressman NEEDS A GOOD EDITOR. Every city where a judge sits and looks at the corporation with one eye and the little people with the other eye--AND A VERY DIFFERENT EYE. EACH--needs an honest editor, WITH BOTH EYES ON THE JUDGE.

But the local editors, the owners of the newspapers in the smaller communities, will never come into their own UNTIL THE UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT SHALL INTRODUCE THE PARCELS POST SYSTEM.

As matters stand now, hundreds of men who would be glad to advertise in local newspapers, to reach the local population, away from the big department stores, are unable to do so, BECAUSE THE THIEVERY OF THE EXPRESS COMPANIES MAKES IT IMPOSSIBLE FOR THE MANUFACTURER TO REACH THE CONSUMER REASONABLY.

A big, successful newspaper in San Francisco—as an example—earns FIVE DOLLARS EVERY YEAR FOR EVERY COPY OF THE PAPER SOLD. This newspaper can earn this amount of money because advertisers through that newspaper can reach directly the people that have the money to spend, AND SUPPLY THEM IMMEDIATELY.

How much it would mean to the owner of a small newspaper if his circulation could be worth to him five dollars a copy! What a good thing it would be for the intelligent, earnest, energetic and honest editor with two thousand circulation if two thousand circulation in the country meant ten thousand dollars profit a year!

Two thousand circulation in the country would be worth more than two thousand in the city to the owner of the paper IF THIS COUNTRY HAD THE PARCELS POST.

In the long run it would be far better for the local storekeeper. It might crowd out the man who is hesitating about failing, and who is going to fail in the end, anyhow. But it would certainly help the

If the man who owns a newspaper in the country had the power, backed with parcels post, to distribute manufactured goods to his readers directly, his paper would be of the greatest possible value, and infinitely more valuable per copy of circulation than any newspaper in any big city.

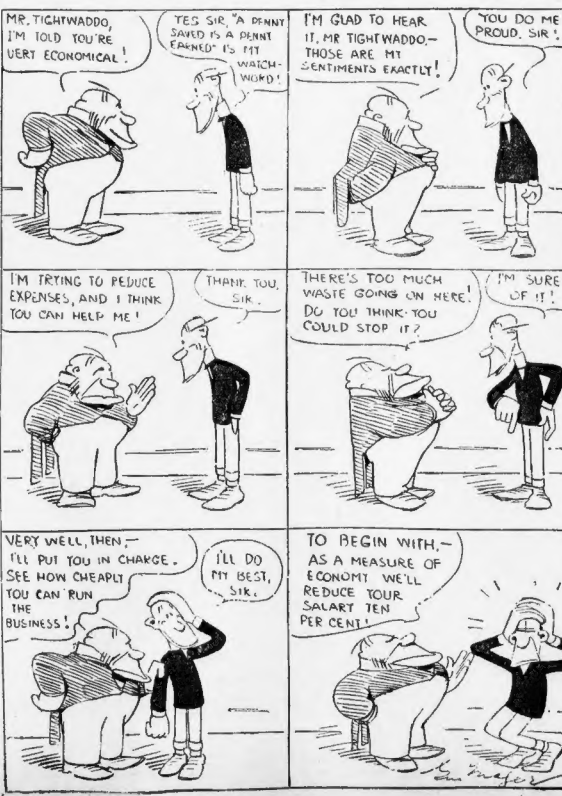

It is important to emphasize the value of the country newspaper. To urge patronage of the local press is good advice from the point of view of the advertiser, and it is still better advice from the point of view of the average citizen.

It would be a very sad day, indeed, for this country if there were not scattered in every little hamlet a conscientious, clean newspaper man, willing for ridiculously small pay to watch and protect the interests of the neighborhood.

The EVENING AMERICAN guarantees to advertisers the largest circulation by far of any daily newspaper in Boston and over 206,000 more than the next highest evening paper, and over 75,000 more than all the other Boston evening newspapers combined. Circulation books open to all.

the turmoil of war men learn to be brave. From this fact it is argued that war breeds physical and mental courage and that universal peace would result in a race of unmanly men.

But science tells us that the warlike nature of to-day is the decadent nation of tomorrow; that war does not breed a race of heroes.

national character that was the location of all military virtues, yet the father who has bred his flock from the studs no longer to be surprised should suddenly find his sire's superior stock which for generations had been supplying the slaughtering pen with stock of the highest quality.

In the light of this conclusion, what a disheartening picture is the memory of Al!

The experience of the outside world has been no exception to the individual sufferer. Many have been driven from their homes by the infernal swamps, hardness and bloodiness of the life which they had found; the talents of the diseases of humankind and camp life.

It is something that every soldier who returns from war is supplied by the virtues, the rare is still the honor, the more it is the more it is the more that which is in the blood. The rare is proved by selection, among select War may leave us heroes and monuments to our nation's greatness, but it also explains the fall of Rome, the "let her strong young men went forth to war and were killed, leaving their sweetest wives to be married to the enemy to mate with less courageous men than they." The fall of the Roman Empire, France, led by the fantastical position of Napoleon, spilled her blood soaked upon the battlefields of Europe, and today are signs of stature and inferiority.

The military world of a few years ago prevailed because, again, other countries were not as clearly organized and equipped.

By CHARLES FERGUSON

JUSTICE GERALD uttered a word weighted with destiny when he suggested that the question of railroad rates will be finally settled, not by the fixing of charges, but by the limitation of dividends.

The principle expressed by the learned Judge is not new to the AMERICAN. It has often been expounded on this page.

But it has yet to make its way in political economics. Rightly apprehended and championed, it is sure to cut a great figure in the field of practical politics and to become, indeed, "a predominant issue."

The adjustment of railroad rates is in its nature a matter of baffling intricacy. In the last resort it will be found that The stockholder will cease to be regarded as the principal and employer of the road manager, and will become a preferred creditor of the concern.

It is not to be supposed that the stockholder should be rigorously adjusted to the nominal principal that profits should be apportioned to the risks involved in the undertaking.

Mr. Arthur Stilwell of Kansas City, just published an enthusiastic apology watered stock.

Mr. Stilwell and all other honest road promoters are right enough in their contention that plowcutter projects are a waste of money and time because of their natural riskiness.

But, there are worse risks than these.

Some day that is served.

This kind of expert advice is the way it was put out to by Judge Learned.

When railroad capitalization shall be made that is the actual investment, and when the rate of interest that shall be fixed by the Interstate Commerce Commission shall be the rate that the railroad will undergo a moral revolution.

When the changed conditions of their work railroad managers will naturally cease to think of the public as their prey, and will

ONE of the things which most strikes a thoughtful visitor in France is the continual expression of anxiety for the future. One hears it in serious convation, one reads it in the newspapers, one finds it the subject of discussions at the Sorbonne, the University of Paris, the Academy of Sciences—in short, everywhere that earnest thinkers assemble.

The basis of this universal Gallic inquietude is depopulation.

Freuchmen are asking one another: "Where shall we be in fifty, or even twenty years? Where shall we find the strong arm to defend us? How can we make front against Teutonic menace when the annual births in Germany are almost three times as numerous as ours? How can we be independent and great if our numbers are decreasing?"

An astonishing fact brought to light by Mr. A. Pinard in a recent lecture at the Sorbonne, is that the number of births in France in the year 1814, when Napoleon was grasping for life, was a million of all ages more than 220,000 greater than in the year 1907! And the rate is still dropping, even in these piping times of peace. In 1900 the number of WHY DOES H. H. stand for H. H. stands for Hilbert Holmes. The members of this club, Sed Ma, want to make the holmes higher and nobler. Don't think, Sed Ma, that it is an ad for Forest Hills real estate, it doesn't mean higher geographically, it means higher spiritually & mentally.

We are going to entertain sum moar

No, and Pa.

Ray yes, and Ma. Ray yes, & say I

Yes, and Pa. Say it again, sed

Yes, Pa sed.
